CLIMBS MT WASHINGTON IN 36 MIN. 44. SEC.

A. E. MORRISON, OF BOSTON, SMASHES ALL RECORDS IN BIG CONTEST TO-DAY.

Special to the Boston American.
REMIT HOUR, Mr. WASHINGTON, N. H., July 11.—A. E. Morrison, of Boston, in a twenty-four horse-power, four-cylinder Perrier machine, smashed all records in the big mountain climbing contest by making the distance in 36 min. 44 sec.

B. Ernest Rogers, of Brookline, in an eighteen-horsepower machine car, had beaten all the records up to 11 o'clock. He left Glen Cottage at 10 a. m., reaching the halfway house at 10:27, and the Summit at 10:43:07.5.

The contest began at 8 o'clock this morning. Mr. L. J. Phelps, of Boston, in a three-cylinder twenty-horse power Peugeot, was the first contestant to gain the summit of Mount Washington. The time was 56 minutes 15.2 seconds, which was a thirty-eight minutes of the record made by Otto Nordman, of Chicago, Feb. 1, 1904. Nordman's time was 48 minutes 30 seconds. The distance from base to summit is eight miles. The time made by Mr. Phelps was about one hour.

better than the time he made over the same road last year.

Mr. Rogers was the second man to arrive. He drove a James six horse power, and covered the distance in 53 min. 52.5 seconds.

The weather is perfect, and should continue for the next few days some record making may be looked for.

Benjamin Smith, in an Oldsmobile of 1904, made the distance in 54 min. 22 seconds, 14.5 seconds.

Charles Rogers, of New York, in a four-cylinder, 20 horse power, covered 2 hours 3 minutes and 44 seconds in reaching the summit of the mountain, being passed by Benjamin Smith, with an Oldsmobile of seven-horse power, whose time was 1:25:14.5.

The first to arrive was H. M. Allen, driving a sixteen-horse power Columbia. His time was 1:21:45.

John Jay's white steamer suffered a puncture the half way up and retired to start again. Half the distance was still to be covered when the steamer was refloated at Glen Cottage at the base of the mountain with the others at the top. By chronograph watches are used on a telephone line to the bottom. Records are sent of the cars reach the top. The machine was sent off every thirty minutes.

Japs Carry the Redoubt by Fierce Assault, and Chefoo Reports Two Russian Battleships Destroyed in Naval Engagement—Kai-Chou Captured in Deadly Conflict, and Attack Is Pressed All Along the Line by the Invading Brown Men.

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

LONDON, July 11.—As the Japanese are slowly but surely closing in upon Port Arthur, according to dispatches from Chefoo and other points, every indication points to a desperate hand-to-hand encounter between the Mikado's valiant little men and the rugged soldiers of the Czar, in which sword and bayonet will play a conspicuous part when the final assault upon the besieged city shall be made.

The fighting has already narrowed down to such a small area, and the belligerent forces are in such close quarters, that stories of face-to-face duels have reached the public, in spite of the wonderfully censored news of the war.

As though simply following a well-conceived program without a single break, news reaches here of the forward march, in spite of all military obstruction, of the Japanese. Chiung-Tao considered the key to the Russian stronghold, has fallen.

The boom of cannon is heard all about the Russian fortress, and it is believed that the present fighting is but the beginning of the end, which may come at any time now.

The indisputable evidence of the deadly character of the fighting is shown by the number of

REFUSED, HE SHOT GIRL

"Teddy" Ives Mortally Wounded
Julia Crandall in Providence Street.

Special to the Boston American.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 11.—Because she refused to accept his attentions and repulsed him when he attempted to talk to her in the street here today, Edward Ives, a bookkeeper, shot down Miss Julia Crandall, 20 years old.

Ives then fired a bullet into his own breast.

The young woman is in the hospital and the doctors say she will die. Ives is a prisoner. Although badly hurt, it is thought that he will recover.

A crowd that was attracted to the scene of the shooting caught Ives, wrenched the weapon from his hand and had him not already shot himself it is believed they would have handled him very roughly.

When asked at the police station why he shot the young woman, Ives replied solemnly: "I suppose I wanted her out of the way."

Ives, who is forty-two years old and is known as "Teddy" Ives, met Miss Crandall who is employed in a jewelry house, at the corner of Federal and Cory streets. The man spoke to the young woman, and it is said she started to walk away. Her voice became angry, and she was heard to say:

"I don't want you to annoy me any more with your attentions. I shall not keep company with you, and you must not follow me about or lay in wait for me as you do."

With her horsepelt and all her forefinger torn away, the schooner Succomb, Captain Elmer Nicholson, looked almost as wrecked as the Packet wharf, Atlantic street, where she unloaded her cargo of fish today.

When the schooner suddenly bore in sight out of the darkness and fog last Tuesday night, the men on the wharf were startled. The schooner's bows were seen ready to crash into the wharf. The schooner was seen to be in danger of collision, and suddenly did the boats come together that no one was able to catch the name of the other schooner.

Valentine T. Sellers, editor of the Law, whose term imposed upon him by Judge Wait of the Superior Court of Essex County, is to be released from Salem Jail as well by virtue of a court order handed down by Judge Morgan in the Supreme Court this morning. This was admitted to bail pending a hearing on writ of error proceedings.

Editor Sellers was sentenced originally for criminal libel against the officials of the Salem Post Farm, whose management of the institution he had criticized in his paper. He was indicted by the grand jury at Newburyport last May. He failed to appear in the Superior Court.

Mr. Sellers petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus. This was denied on the ground that his remedy lay in a writ of error. It was in this proceeding that Mr. Sellers was admitted to bail today.

dead Russian soldiers that have been brought into the town. On one day over 1,000 bodies were recovered. The fortresses, whose death knell is being rung by the roar of cannon, is even now a city of the dead. Like a great moraine in a town where a catastrophe has taken place, the slain bodies of the czar's army are being brought into Port Arthur from every direction by hundreds.

From Chao, under today's date, comes the confirmation that what is believed to be the grand assault on the czar's citadel is on.

"Heavy firing was heard in the direction of Port Arthur last night, which lasted from midnight to 2 o'clock this morning."

The dispatch from Chao reports that the Japanese captured Ciung-Tao after a fierce and determined attack. With this position in the hands of the Japs, a way is opened through the chain of hills that surround Port Arthur, through which the Mikado's army can march to the attack on the fort itself.

The dispatch says that the battle between the two armies is raging along the chain of hills between Ciung-Tao and Port Arthur.

At the same time the Japanese navy is reported as doing very effective work. One of the battleships that is reported to have been destroyed in the Russian sea of the Chao's bay. Another battleship, the name of which is not known as yet, it is said, was destroyed in the same sea fight. The details of the battle have not reached here yet.

THREE DAYS' FIGHT AT KAIKHO.
The Tokio edition of the capture of Kai-Kho of Kai Chao revealed today reveals a fierce three days' battle in which General Oka's army, in the face of a deadly fire from the infantry, cavalry and artillery of the Russians, drove them back and captured the place.

The dispatch says that after three days' severe fighting, characterized by the desperate attacks of the Japanese and the stubborn resistance of the Russians, General Oka's army captured Kai Chao last Friday, driving the Russians northward in the direction of Kai-Cheng.

The Russians had strongly fortified the hill situated in a semi-circle south of Kai Ping. Their forces consisted of more than 20,000 men. The operations began last Wednesday by the Japanese driving 1,000 Russians from the heights south of Kai Ping, constituting the first line of defense. The Russians retreated northward.

On the same day the right wing of the Japanese army, southeast of Kai Ping, defeated a small force of Russians and the left wing occupied the heights to the south-east. On Thursday the entire Japanese Army forced its way close to Kai Ping, overcoming the stubborn resistance of the Russian infantry, cavalry and artillery located in the narrow defile.

During the night the Russians were greatly reinforced by the troops brought from the North by train in preparation for a big battle Friday. The Japanese began the last day's fighting at daylight with an artillery fire from guns placed on the heights previously captured from the Russians. At 8 o'clock in the morning they drove the Russians from their positions and forced them into their last line of defense around the town. Many troops were withdrawn during the morning. The Russians finally took position on the tops of high precipices and again offered a stubborn resistance. About noon they were again forced to withdraw.

The Japanese pursued the enemy despite a severe artillery fire from the Russian batteries on the high hills to the North.

The Japanese artillery finally occupied new positions and silenced these batteries. In the afternoon the Japanese occupied the town without further resistance.

RELATIONS CUT BACKTIME FOR OFF: 2 GIRLS MISSALICE ON THE SABBATH

The disposition of property acquired by Leland Pitts, who, disguised as a Mohawk Indian, was lieutenant to Samuel Adams on the night of the Boston Tea Party, depends upon court litigation. It may all go to the famous Boston artist.

The will of his grandson, the late Leland P. Carver, is to be contested by his cousin, James L. Pitts, of Arlington.

The property, valued at about $60,000, is said to be in the hands of the court.

GALE IS NOT "KID" LEWIS

"People who told reporters that I am 'Kid Lewis,' a pugilist, made a mistake. I never fought under that name. I was a pugilist. The Grand Jury has acquitted me of responsibility for the death of William Golding, and it is not true that I began the fight with him. The story published by newspapers when he died was wrong. He struck me first, and in trying to dodge the blow I aimed at him in return he slipped and fell."

This statement was made to the BOSTON AMERICAN by Augustine A. Gale, of No. 37 Sydney street, Dorchester, who was arrested after Golding died on May 21.

Gale held for the Grand Jury on the charge of being a blank for the man's fatal injury. He said he was the only man who brought the old people to the altar.

Fair Harvard Next.

The President's daughter laughed gleefully as she noted the charge. She dashed from one room into another. Then, with a glance at her grandfather, she turned to the committee members of the Harvard, bringing a look of deep despair to her face. She said she was the only one who brought the old people to the altar.

"Miss Alice rose at 7 o'clock today and came down stairs bright and fresh from a good night's sleep. Accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Matthews, she went to the bank to see Mr. Matthews, who was a bookkeeper for the Union Oil Company and Mrs. Amy had heard that he had been married, and received, his wife living in this city."

JAPS ENVELOP PORT, RUSSIAN DEAD 1,000

Special Cable to Boston American. LONDON, July 11.—Like a giant serpent gradually coiling itself about its victim, the Japanese army is pressing Port Arthur from all sides with an almost fanatical aggressiveness that it is believed may mean the fall of the beleaguered fort at any minute.

From the lips of the Russians themselves comes the story of the steady advance of the invincible army of little brown men. Dispatches from day to day from St. Petersburg tell of the deadly clash of the two armies within two to ten miles of the inner walls of the fort, and they invariably end with defeat for the czar's forces.

800 RUSSIAN DEAD BROUGHT IN.

By the way of Chao it is learned that 800 Chinese carriers brought the bodies of 800 dead Russians late this week to Port Arthur. The Chinese reported that the Japs had advanced then to within six miles to the east of the town, taking position after position in their onward march to the walls of the beleaguered town.

General Sakharoff confirms the report that the Japanese now occupy Kai Chao. He says that the engagement resulted in a loss of 150 Russians killed and wounded. The Japanese, General Sakharoff adds, are advancing along the coast toward Yankow. It is thought that the Japanese cavalry have already arrived at Yankow.

In his official report General Sakharoff tells the story of the dogged, determined manner in which the Mikado's men are cutting their way forward, step by step after position occupied by the Russian soldiers.

In his dispatch General Sakharoff says: "Forward the Russian army has been driven back, consisting of four divisions."

FISH SCARCE, PRICES HIGH

The scarcity of fish in the market today sent prices away up again. Six dollars per hundredweight was offered by the commission men for what had been called. This was the highest price for fish in the city since the war.

The fish, which had been brought in from the coast, was sold at a profit of 10 cents per pound. The price was 10 cents per pound.

MASSACHUSETTS DELEGATES ON THE WAY HOME

Late in Starting Special May Reach Boston Early
To-morrow.

Some Grumbling Heard, and Mayor Calls Convention a
"Nightmare."

Special to the Boston American.

ON THE CONVENTION SPECIAL, Buffalo, N. Y., July 11.—In a friendly call made to the New York delegates, it was discovered that Fred H. Parker, brother of the candidate for President, was one of the party. Promptly Massachusetts delegates gathered in, delighted to have the opportunity of meeting Mr. Parker. He proved a "jovial sort."

"A fine crowd of men, these from Massachusetts," he said, "and I am glad I had the honor of meeting them."

Mr. Parker is several years younger than his brother George, large framed and partially bald. His home is in New York and he meets his brother only at infrequent intervals.

Was Not a Surprise.

"It was no surprise," Mr. Parker said, "that the nomination was coming to the family, as it was not a surprise to me. The Judge is a man of principle. He would never accept the nomination under false pretenses. There is an influence strong enough to change the course, once he has decided what is right."

"My brother is a man of great taste and not the least kind of display. He is not an orator and scarcely even a public speaker, having been 25 years on the bench."

N. Y. Men Entertain.

The New York delegates entertained regally, with the assistance of the "Dixie" girls. After the entertainment given by the New York men, ex-Congressman John P. Fitzgerald led in the singing. James A. Callahan made the salt of the evening with his illustrations of speeches made during some hot old Boston campaign.

He spared no one. McKim and Fitzgerald got their, and choice bits of ward philosophy from McFadden, Norris, Lonsomey and Kilgus were dispensed, to the delight of the party. Hurlocks of Longmeadow all over the train.

As two of the "Dixie" girls left the train at Detroit, all remained up to give them a send-off.

Train Five Hours Late.

It was after 4 o'clock when Detroit was reached, the train being over five hours late. An accident some thirty miles outside of Detroit disabled the engine. For an hour the special was stalled, until the section following came up. The two trains because one until Detroit was reached.

The special visit of the Massachusetts delegation in Miss Ruth McLaughlin, daughter of Jack McLaughlin, the famous champion. He was formerly connected with Boston Yarns, and is now at the Southern in St. Louis. His little girl is in care of Frank Rock until Boston is reached. She is on her way to Duxbury.

Dr. Frances Donaghy very nearly lost the train at St. Louis. Thinking the delay gave him an opportunity to secure a place to rest, he went back to the restaurant. To his surprise, the conductor started the train. Jimmy White sat up the cry, "Donaghy is left behind." Agent Barry's prompt connection with the bell brought the special to a stop. A message found the doctor just about to swallow his lunch. No words were wasted in explanation, neither was the check paid, but the doctor caught the train and went home until the dining car was attached.

Superior's clothes were removed and all were left in slumber until the morning. The "Dixie" girls were in a forward car and would journey as far as Buffalo. The returned lunch train was promptly returned.

During luncheon the young women were found to be an affable set. They announced that they thought the Massachusetts men far handsomer and more interesting than the New York delegates, who were also aboard.

Concert on Train.

The "Dixie" girls yielded to their heat with conflict covering them from head to foot. Their presence woke up the whole crowd. It was decided that, with such talent aboard, a concert was necessary. W. T. A. and John Fitzgerald, with Jim Dittmore, were made a committee to arrange the details. The affair came off in the dining car, and was attended by every one who could get in or stand outside.

Jimmy Dittmore presided with tact and skill. There were songs, choruses and a general good time. The special will arrive in Boston some time between 5 and 8 o'clock Monday night.

MR. HEARST WILL SUPPORT THE TICKET

In Interview with Chicago-Record-Herald He Gives Views of the Situation.

PUTS PARTY ABOVE SELF

CHICAGO, July 10.—The following interview with William Randolph Hearst, by a Chicago Record-Herald reporter at the Auditorium Annex, appeared Sunday, July 10, in the Chicago Record-Herald:

HEARST A GOOD LOSER.

Editor in Defeat Expresses Loyalty to His Party and its Principles.

FAITH IS PUT ABOVE SELF.

New Yorker Convinced by Strong Plank Against Trusts and Special Privileges.

William Randolph Hearst, grandson, one day, settling, without a suggestion of disappointment, because he had failed of nomination for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket, after a campaign which he took his exercise and his power, said last night that he would support the nominee and the platform of the St. Louis convention.

Without a trace of rancor, without an increase directed against any one who had defeated his aspirations for the high office, he was perfectly sincere, but with a word of appreciation for the followers who had followed him in the St. Louis convention.

"I am returning to New York this evening and must not permit for saying that I cannot talk at great length," he said. "I have a smile and reaching out his hand, in token of friendship—Hearst has in the eyes, when speaking, 'I know it, but perhaps I may say something now if you will tell me what you want.'"

"If you will not talk of yourself and your feelings, what have you to say of the convention, its platform and nominee?"

"I believe that good Republicans and good Democrats are not far apart. I believe that unless there is something in the platform which prevents it, it is not to be expected that every man in it be pleased or entirely satisfied. I believe that I shall do what I can for the success of the party in the coming campaign."

Silent as to Self.

"Of myself, I have nothing to say," was his remark when asked for an interview. "I am returning to New York this evening and must not permit for saying that I cannot talk at great length."

"I believe that good Republicans and good Democrats are not far apart. I believe that unless there is something in the platform which prevents it, it is not to be expected that every man in it be pleased or entirely satisfied. This is a delightful chair. The first impression gives you is that you are not sitting in the chair, but that the chair is holding you. It seems to grip you and entice you like a coquette on a carpet.

The chair's virtue is really the designer's clever ingenuity. The seat is exactly carved to fit the depression you would make if you sat for a plaster cast. Then the front legs are made the barest trifle longer than the rear legs, to give you a slightly backward incline.

Next, the back is framed to a fair concavity to hold you in a restful way, and the arm rests are fitted a little to support the whole weight from the shoulder downward.

Finally, the legs are measured off to bring the seat at a right distance from the floor.

JIG AND BLINK WILL MAKE IT LIVELY FOR FANS TO-NIGHT

Something doing every night this week for the fight fans. Fine scraps of the many are, too, in each bout. Some fast old last time of the little chaps are to be pulled off. When these thirty boys put up their heads the lucky numbers will get their money's worth all right.

Two swell local events are booked, in each of which ring fans who will be present are certain to do a winner.

It's even money and take your pick in both battles, the boys are so closely matched.

Take that scrap tonight between Jim Stone and Elliot McCleary at Manchester, N. H., for instance. This bout will be the model for fair, and some more. Each has a host of warm admirers, who believe each other's favored.

hard left take and right books to head and body. He is a mighty tough customer. He captured the animal in a spirit of fun yesterday at Conny Island, when in the company of ex-senator Joseph and John Constance. The catch was not made without a struggle, as before the lion was safely in Fitz's hands, which is a thing of beauty to see working.

These two star wars go ten rounds, and Cambridge ring fans will enjoy the chips.

That bout on Friday night at Chicago between Francis Smith and Alvin Atell will be full of fun business while it lasts. It is a great question of how long it lasts, as Smith is a very tough customer.

Alvin's friends say he has the punch to beat him, but the California wonder says he will outbox him. Some fight followers hope out Atell's success over Harry and Corbett as a precedent for fighting with the conqueror.

Not, but not many who have ever seen him in the ring admit to still little fighters can work fast, and still make good use of their hands.

One of the hardest battles of the week is that scheduled at Philadelphia between Dave Holly and Kid Griffin. Both boys are there with the weight, and they will give from start to finish.

FITZ FIGHTS LION AND WINS BOUT

NEW YORK, July 11.—Robert Fitzsimmons, the fighter, has added a lion cub to his strange collection of pets at his home at Rossmore. He captured the animal in a spirit of fun yesterday at Conny Island, when in the company of ex-senator Joseph and John Constance. The catch was not made without a struggle, as before the lion was safely in Fitz's hands, which is a thing of beauty to see working.

GARDNER WON BOUT IN TENT

In a big tent, pitched for the occasion, at the east end of Revere Beach, where State cops and Esplanade's police were on duty, Jack Gardner, who has been out of the game for a year, "tried out" Hughes Cannon, an aspiring lightweight of Fall River. Gardner, the Mill City boy, slept in five rounds with a left and right swing to the body and jaw, before a selected crowd of summer residents who enjoyed the sport furnished by the little boxer.

Gardner and Cannon were matched to box ten rounds and Gardner agreed to go on with his rival, who was bound over to him, provided no decision was rendered. Both men were on their feet at the close, and there was no knockout the purse was to be equally divided.

Gardner weighed 120 pounds, while Cannon weighed 137 pounds. Though Gardner was in the ring in good condition, he did not look to be in the best of health. At the beginning of the bout he kept up his fight, but Gardner was not so good, but Cannon at long range showed up to advantage, then left Gardner's head and body until Gardner bore in and tried to get the fight.

Both men were badly punished, Gardner taking the bulk of the punishment. After the battle the summer residents and sports present arranged a match between Gardner and Paul A. Bryant, boxing instructor of the New York, to take place within the next two weeks.

CIGARS CIGAR SENSE

The United Cigar Stores system appeals to the smoker by quality, by price and by common sense. Isn't it reasonable? We buy more than 150,000,000 cigars annually from factories growing their own Havana tobacco.

We take the output of these factories, and the usual items of selling expense and production charges are cut out. All the "in-between" expenses are saved. Instead of sinking this money in these unnecessary items our system puts the money directly into the quality of the cigar. That means you get a better cigar for your usual expenditure—better by about 50 per cent. Here's an example:

GEN. BRADDOCK

(DIPLOMATIC SIZE)

$1.00 per box of twenty-five

Filled with thoroughly seasoned, well-blended, clean, long leaf—rolled by hand and wrapped with best Sumatra—burns evenly and makes a smooth, mild smoke. The kind of cigars that usually sell for three for 25 cents.

All quantities of cigars, always in perfect condition.

GONG LIKELY TO BE HEAVY AT BRIGHTON

By Boston American Leased Wire.
NEW YORK, July 11.—If the footing turns real deep, the race at Brighton Beach this afternoon is sure to be dominated by scrums. Because of the probability of such a condition the prospect, so far as the odds shape up on paper, is decidedly uncertain and perplexing.

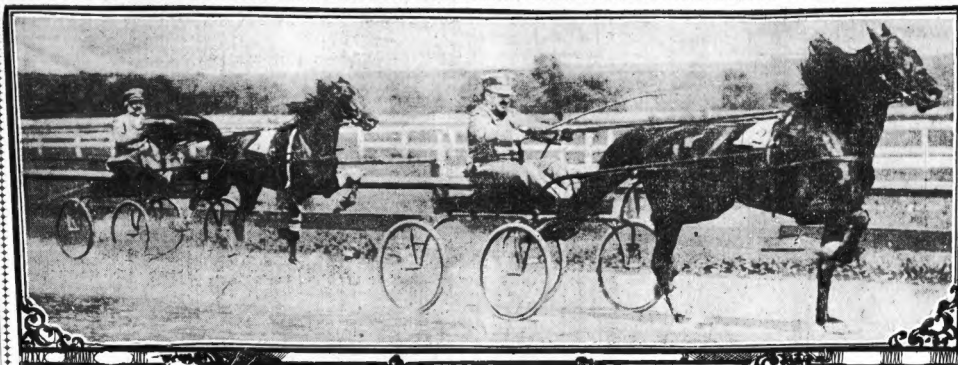

Most interest will center in the two-year-old events, where several good things are supposed to run. Sydney Page is considered another nice colt in prospect in the fifth race, but report has it that this son of Waterhouse cannot do well in heat. That results in the race, from a betting point of view, is a half and a half. This colt is in a good condition just now.

"Bab" Tucker like thirty-third very much, but the seven two-year-old colts scarcely beat Tradition and Chasapline in her race, the Daffodil Stakes. This will be one of the strong events of the day.

In the first race before will be asked to appreciate on a large field of entries ridden by maiden jockeys. This will be an other day of big things in the ring.

TEENEY'S MEN WIND UP IN SMOKETOWN

PITTSBURGH, July 11.—Teeney's men will tackle the Champions in their final game of the series this afternoon. Fisher will probably be wanted to the club by the visitors if he wants to satisfactorily.

Manager Buck is on the lookout for new players, as he realizes that his team needs strengthening badly. He has his eye on several minor leaguers, and claims they will be made before the season ends.

There is a decided lack of snap in the visitors' play, and until they get more dash in it and more factor, they can't expect to be much higher in the league race, now well along the season. Today they are far from being an attraction.

After the game today the Pirates will leave for the Windy City, where they will play a four-day series with the Cubs tomorrow.

At Boston.—First game, Boston 7, New York 3. Second game, Boston 4, New York 2.

From a Boston American Staff Correspondent With the Team.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Sunday, in the camp of the Bostonians, was ended by a heavy downpour of rain. In fact, it was pouring buckets all morning and well into the afternoon. Toward night the storm abated, and the moon and stars appeared in their customary places in the heavens.

Most of the players were late sleepers, some of them not getting up until late in the morning. However, Collins and Stahl arose early and went to mass in the Church of the Holy Innocent, which is directly in the rear of the Marlborough.

The reason for their tardy appearance downstairs may have been due to the storm, but evidently it was because most of them went out Saturday night to enjoy themselves. At 10 o'clock, after a night's rest, the players were in the hotel, ready to start for the game.

Manager Griffith calls.

Clark Griffith, of the New Yorks, dropped late in for a few minutes about five o'clock. He congratulated the Bostonians on their victory in the first three games. He assured them that they would have to play ball if they hoped to win the pennant. Griffith has said that if there is any team in the country to beat like the one who won the pennant, would help Boston to win it.

Griffith's visit to the Boston camp was the first since the battle with the High School team. He was there to see how the team was getting on, and to see if they were ready for the game.

Mr. Martyr

As the candidate of the Democratic party, no matter whether he is a "gold man" or not, Judge Parker should do all in his power to convince the people that in voting for him they will be voting against a law-scorning and despoiling plutocracy. How can Judge Parker hope so to convince the people if he shall allow a man of August Belmont's antecedents and associations to pose as his sponsor and near friend and adviser?

The effect of the eleventh-hour telegram to the national convention can be repaired, but not if the Democratic Presidential candidate shall retain such a man as a sponsor and adviser among his closest counselors.

IF I were not in a tremendous hurry, Mrs. Martyr, I should never allow you to help me to pack this trunk. Women have no sense of system and order. That is why they always pack trunks badly.

But as the trunk must get to the South Station in an hour, you may bring my clothes from the closet and lay them down here for me to put in.

Give me the things first that I shall need first. That is the first principle of system. It would never have occurred to you, would it?

Look out! There's a bottle of whiskey in that package. Do you want to spill it all over my dress clothes and gain me a reputation as a sot?

No, now hand me my brushes and a couple of shirts. No, not those shirts. You might know I don't want shirts that the laundry has torn all to atoms.

My only ones? Well, I expected it. You never send my shirts to the laundry till too late to get them back. How could you send them while I am wearing them? Don't try to be sarcastic, Mrs. Martyr. A woman can never be sarcastic.

Now give me that present Harris sent me. I don't know what it is, but it must be something handsome, or Harris wouldn't have sent it. We'll put that way down at the bottom. Listen! Did you hear anything? I thought I detected the sound of a kitten mewling somewhere. I don't see why you insist on having the place overrun with cats.

Now give me my dress suit. You did give it to me? Well, where is it? Is the trunk? I suppose so. You might have mentioned it when you handed it to me. Now I've got to fish it out and take the cigars out of the vest pocket. They're all I have, and I need them to smoke on the train.

That's right. Upset the neat piles of things I have laid out on the floor.

Now I don't know where to begin and where to leave off.

Where are my wool undershirts? I suppose you have lost them, and as a result I shall take cold and contract pneumonia.

You have them? Well, I guess I don't need them. Can't you find my light ones? I think they're up in the attic. Run up and get them, please. Yes, those

You think I might take them now you've been to the trouble of getting them for me, do you? I suppose you do. You would be perfectly willing to have me chilled to the marrow. You wouldn't be put to any trouble taking care of me if I should fall sick, because I shall not be here.

I wish I knew what that mewling was. Does it sound to you as if it was in the trunk?

Come, hurry along. I've only got five minutes. Here, give me those things! Women are so frightfully slow. This is the way to get them in. Use main Confound it; it won't close by a foot. Here, help me haul these things out of here. Why didn't you put them in? You might have known that a man couldn't pack a trunk.

Lay them in carefully and neatly, now, and hurry. I think I hear the expressman at the door. Now, help me pull the strap. There, thank Heaven, it's done. Listen! What is that noise? Put your ear to the trunk. You say it comes from the inside? Nonsense! Who could have put a cat in my trunk?

Yes, it's growing louder. It's that package of Harris's. Jiminy! my hand is scratched half off. Ouch! it bit me—I know it did! There, take that, you miserable creature, and there's one for the fellow that sent you!

Now, back into the trunk with the things. There's only half a minute. There's the expressman at the door, and he's only got half an hour to get the trunk to the station. Quick! Leave the things out that won't go in. Found it, woman, can't you hurry? There, slap on the lid, and I'll lock it. Now

What's the matter? What am I dancing around for? Look, look, listen! Don't you hear? That scoundrelly cat must have jumped back into the trunk when I was chasing her around the room, and I've locked her in again.

I am a mild and kind-hearted man, Mrs. Martyr, but if you insist in permitting that blackguard of a Harris to come to this house I shall leave it forever and ever.
